The role of the case examiners

The case examiners perform a filtering function in the fitness to practise process, and their primary role is to determine whether the case ought to be considered by adjudicators at a formal hearing. The wider purpose of the fitness to practise process is not to discipline the social worker for past conduct, but rather to consider whether the social worker's current fitness to practise might be impaired because of the issues highlighted. In reaching their decisions, case examiners are mindful that Social Work England's primary objective is to protect the public.

Case examiners apply the 'realistic prospect' test. As part of their role, the case examiners will consider whether there is a realistic prospect:

- the facts alleged could be found proven by adjudicators
- adjudicators could find that one of the statutory grounds for impairment is engaged
- adjudicators could find the social worker's fitness to practise is currently impaired

If the case examiners find a realistic prospect of impairment, they consider whether there is a public interest in referring the case to a hearing. If there is no public interest in a hearing, the case examiners can propose an outcome to the social worker. We call this accepted disposal and a case can only be resolved in this way if the social worker agrees with the case examiners' proposal.

Case examiners review cases on the papers only. The case examiners are limited, in that, they are unable to hear and test live evidence, and therefore they are unable to make findings of fact.

Final outcome	20 July 2026
	Accepted disposal - warning order (3 years)

Executive summary

The case examiners are satisfied that there is a realistic prospect that:

1. The factual concern could be found proven by the adjudicators;
2. This concern could amount to the statutory ground of a conviction or caution in the United Kingdom for a criminal offence.
3. The adjudicators could conclude that the social worker's fitness to practise is currently impaired.

The case examiners do not consider it to be in the public interest for the matter to be referred to a final hearing and that the case can be concluded by way of accepted disposal.

As such, the case examiners notified the social worker of their intention to resolve the case with a warning order of 3 years duration and seek their agreement to conclude the case by way of accepted disposal. The social worker accepted the proposal.
